FACULTY

The Teachers of Hickman High School

We have learned valuable lessons from the examples our teachers have set us—lessons of fairness, unselfishness, unfailing energy and enthusiasm.

Although we may have complained when not given the grades we expected, we realize that the amount we have learned is more important than the grades we have received. The Senior Class leaves thanks, best wishes, and genuine appreciation for the teachers of Hickman High School.

RICHARD NEVINS

Seniors

Who are the ones who act wise and sedate,
Who go where they want to, and stay out late,
Who do what they want to without debate,
Who say what they want to, and don't hesitate?

The Seniors!

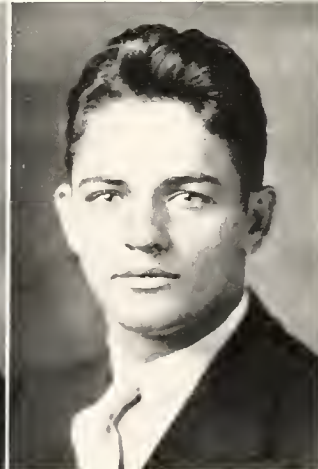

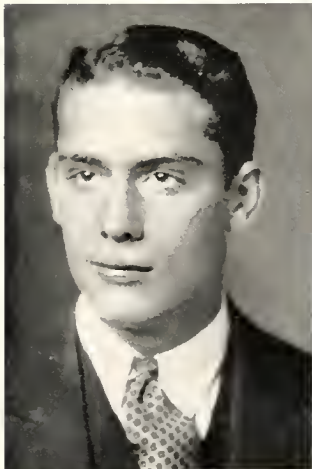

They are the ones in the Balcony, too,
They yell much louder than most classes do;
They dream high dreams which they hope will come true,
And as they leave Hickman, look sorry and blue!

The Seniors!

Who are the playful and gay
Who believe in "no work and all play,"
Who have all the pep,
Try to keep a good rep,
And skip when they want to each day?

Who can they possibly be?
Why, that is easy to see;
Of course we all know
Who play as they go.
The Juniors of '33.

 SOPHOMORES

AS THE SOPHOMORES SEE US

It is queer, but we sophomores really like our own class best, and here is one sophomore whom we like especially well.

She knows all the answers,
Does this little lass,
And the sophomores chose her
To head that large class.
She is liked by students
And teachers as well:
"Quality but not quantity"
Describes Carmen swell.

The upper classmen are very domineering. A sophomore can't even speak or look pleasant without one of them saying in a deep voice, "Shut up. Sophomores are supposed to be seen and not heard." Just the same we like many of them whom we will try to tell you about. One is a junior of high esteem—a tall, handsome, boy who has black hair and light blue eyes. His skill on the basketball floor as well as the mischievous smile he always wears is a password to our hearts. Of course, you all know him, for he is the president of the junior class.

We even like the "think-they-are-it" seniors, for among them is the one who stands up on the stage at the end of assembly program, holds up his hand, and says, "This concludes the program for this morning; you may go to your first period classes."

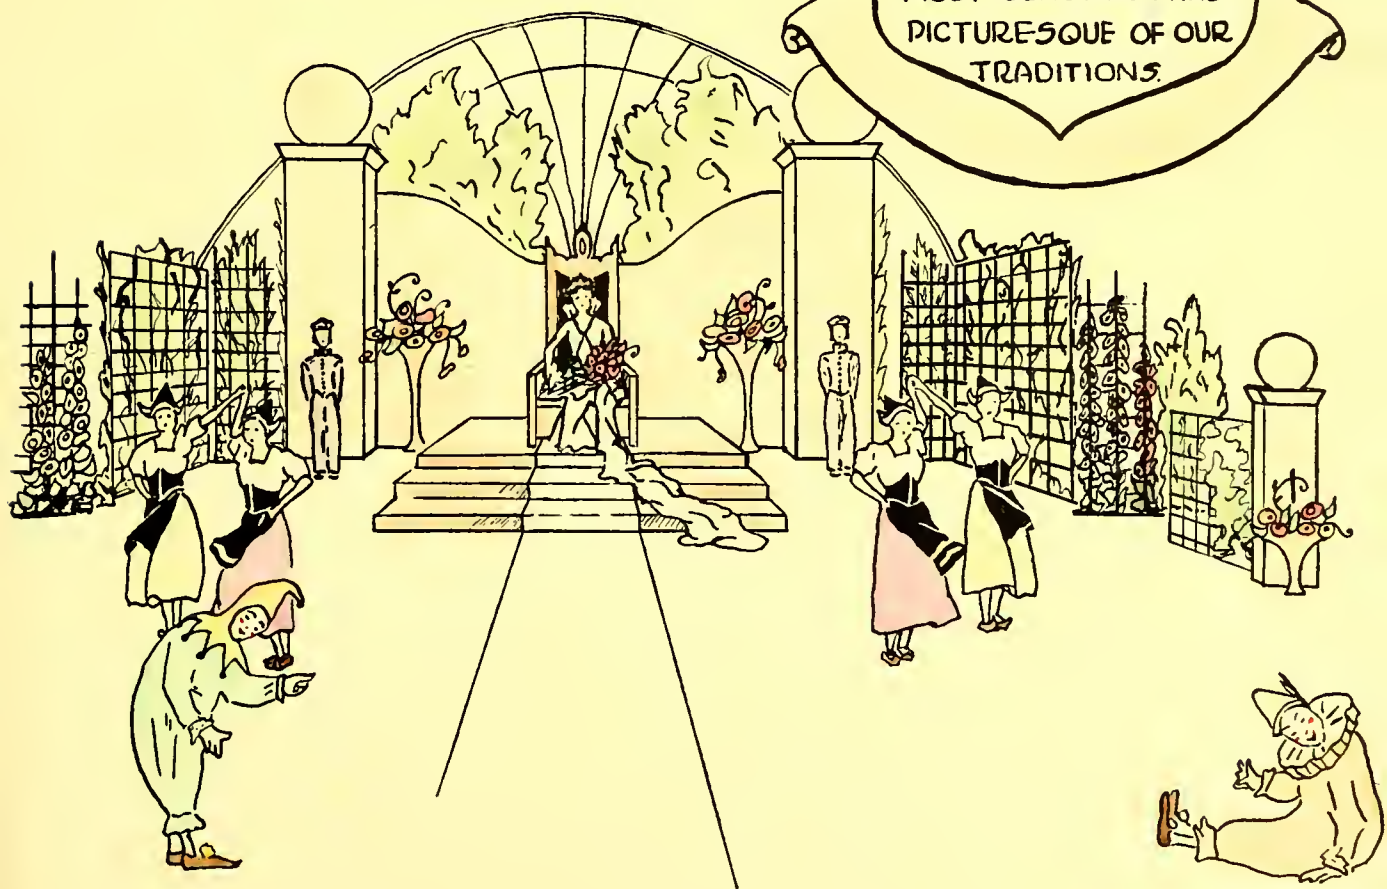

Though they probably won't believe us, we like the teachers too, and truly appreciate the help they give us.

Of course, we are only sophomores, and our opinion doesn't amount to a whole lot now, but next year we will be juniors; the next, seniors, and then—we will be able to express better our opinion of Hickman; now we'll just say, "Hickman is a grand old place!"

With the completion of this year's football schedule Columbia Kewpies have now reigned for four consecutive years under the guidance of Coach Glenn C. Smith. During this past season the Kewpies won every game with no ties and compiled a total of 194 points while the opponents were collecting only 13. These scores indicate the power of not only the Kewpies themselves but also the Coach who has worked so faithfully to give this team the spirit and cooperation which has led them to the many victories that they have obtained.

'Bring me some mashed eggs.'

OTTENSCHNEIDER—Center

"Joseph Anthony Ferdinand, Jr." for short.

GEE—Guard

"1000% pure."

Basketball Season

Hickman had an unusually successful season this year in basketball with twenty-three victories and only five defeats. Columbia won both games with Boonville and Jefferson City, and lost the only series to Kirksville. These last two defeats were avenged somewhat however in the state tournament when the Kewpies bowled over the Tigers 20-9. The Kewpies earned the right to enter this tournament by first winning the district meet. Although the team was not then hitting the basket in the first round of the state tournament, and lost to Desloge 18-14, they came back strong to win the consolation fight by defeating Harrisonville in the finals 20-18, incidentally adding two trophies to our growing collection.

THE STUDENT COUNCIL

Monday after school . . Miss Stean . . the student president . . expressions of student problems and student joys . . discussion on the needs of Hickman High . . perhaps some progress on a task assigned . . and finally a glad dismissal—Student Council.

FRANKLIN CLUB

Benjamin Franklin quiet and wise . . Leif Ericson daring, reckless, and brave . . George Washington, the father of our country—These are some of the men we admire; these the unconscious founders of our History Club.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Le Cercle Francais is an honor club for those who have shown ability in French. The interesting activities which bring not only the language, but also the music, art, literature, traditions, and life of the French to the students have made Le Cercle Francais one of the most interesting and active clubs at Hickman.

ORGANIZATIONS

QUILL AND SCROLL

If you can write a story that is clever,
Or a poem that is snappy, grave or gay,
If you can run a publication, and never
Let your lessons go unstudied any day,
If you believe the journalist helps a nation
And always do the things that he should do,
If you can spend some time in concentration
And work out an idea that is new,
If you can set a lofty goal and win it
In other worthwhile occupations too,
Yours is the Quill and Scroll, and all that's in it,
And you'll deserve it, student—here's to you!

Elective Clubs

LATIN CLUB

Rhymes and pictures with Latin names,
Puzzles and contests and jolly games.
Sometimes a story or Roman play—
Come, visit our Latin Club some fine day.

HOME ECONOMICS

Hot, white rolls . . . cherry pies . . . large chocolate cakes with thick, white icing . . . shiny white tables . . . crisp, ruffled curtains . . . dainty pink aprons—Oh, the delights of our Home Economics Club!

THALIAN GUILD

The cruel villain lifts his knife; the beautiful heroine swoons; the dashing hero saves the day—we study dramatics in the Thalian Guild.

GIRL RESERVES

The Girl Reserve Club, the junior organization of the Y. W. C. A., is one of the most outstanding clubs of the school. With inspirational programs, ideals as "hobbies", and a general good time for all, membership in this group is worthwhile and enjoyable.

BIRD CLUB ACTIVITIES

Taking field hikes to identify birds and their habits—attending meetings to work on bird booklets—belonging to the Junior Audubon Society, and preparing to present the magazine "Bird Lore" to the Library—such is the work of the Bird Club.

Orchestra

Under the able and efficient leadership of Mr. Mays, the orchestra this year was one of the largest and best our school has ever had. As one of the outstanding music organizations of the city, it has not only been much in demand for various public functions, but it has also sponsored several projects of its own. A concert was presented in conjunction with the chorus in February, and as this book goes to press, two more concerts and a trip to the Kirksville District Contests are on the roster.

Outstanding among the several ensemble and solo groups which have developed as branches of the orchestra is the wood-wind ensemble, which has made several public performances and radio broadcasts. Its members are George Neitzert and Charles Robinson, flutes, Bill Hammond, clarinet, and Harry Ball, bassoon. A great deal of hard work has been contributed to all of these projects, and the school has a representative organization of which it may justly be proud.

During the second semester, much time has been devoted to two famous masterpieces: Beethoven's First Symphony and Mozart's piano concerto in D Minor, in which George Neitzert is piano soloist.

 SIDE GLANCES

TO SCHOOL ON A FOGGY MORNING

From warm, cozy comfort
Into the dank, heavy air outside.
The world is stirring.
Its awakening sounds come.
Ghostly and muffled, to the ear
A car roars by on the street.
Almost hidden, its shapeless form
Preceded by two huge unblinking eyes
Whose beams feel their way uncertainly
Through the opaque, white veil.
Somewhere a dog barks: the sound,
Weirdly distorted, floats tremulously upward,
Fading into invisible distance.
The power plant, its huge dynamos roaring,
Is like a giant hive, whose workers drone endlessly
For our convenience.
On, on, through the choking, penetrating chill,
Spectral shapes resolving themselves out of the mist,
Only to vanish again.
In the east, the giant yellow disc that is the sun
Heralds the opening of its struggle with the blinding vapor.
A huge black mass with long rows of lights looms ahead,
Gliding silently toward us like a mammoth ship.
It is the school and a haven of friendly warmth.

COMING TO SCHOOL

Students hurrying along the street—feet tapping and clattering up the walk—laughter, greetings, and the strident urge of automobile horns—book laden, and otherwise, the crowd passes—it thins—a few stragglers run up the walk—a bell sounds, and the building swallows them all.

THE AUDITORIUM

Assemblies, plays, and concerts find a beautiful setting in the Hickman Auditorium. It is here, too, that we create and keep going the old Kewpie spirit.

Friendship and good feeling seem to thrive here. The boys sitting about chatting and watching the girls dance and the romantic couples under the balcony are familiar sights to all of us.

Associated with the auditorium are friendships and memories which we shall always cherish.

TO A LOCKER

Locker, Locker, in the hall,
Tell me, can't you talk at all?
Tell me of the joys and tears
You have seen through all the years;
Tell me of that low sweet talk,
As hand in hand to you we walk:
Tell me of that awful scare—
The teachers near—and your lock not there;
Tell me of that joyful run
When school is out and to you we come.
Locker, Locker, in the hall,
Tell me, haven't you heard at all?

THE CAFETERIA

Just before noon each morning, a blended odor of cooking food creeps stealthily through the halls and classrooms of Hickman High, and overcomes us, the defenseless occupants, with hunger which cannot be satisfied until we are gathered around our favorite table in the cafeteria. Here, between mouthfuls, we learn the latest news, the choicest gossip and the most recent accomplishments of our life at Hickman High School.

HICKMAN HIGH LUNCH

A beaten path stretches across our campus, worn by the feet of a long line of students who go daily to the little store across the street. Here amidst the jingling of glasses, the glad shouts, and gay taunts, friendships are made and strengthened. From here also, students return with such plunder as chewing gum or mints stored away in bulging pockets to be devoured later in the afternoon.

GARRET'S

There's the aroma of hamburgers cooking,
There are stacks of pies and cakes;
And a "Hello, folks! Come right in!"
With the feeling of comfort that makes.

It isn't a part of Hickman.
But somehow it seems to be
A part of the life of the students—
A page in their history.

AN AMERICAN HISTORY CLASS

An American History Class is a scene of unsuspected drama, tenseness and strategy.

"Will you please trace the battles of the Civil War?" from the teacher.

Immediately half of the fearful students lower themselves bodily until they're out of sight behind the shoulders of the ones in front. And the other half is seized by a paroxysm of coughing and a sudden need of a handkerchief. The brilliant students avoid meeting the hopeful eye of the teacher, meanwhile wondering frantically if the turning point of the war was at Vicksburg—or was it the Argonne—no it must have been Yorktown—help!

A GLIMPSE AT PHYSIOLOGY

As the students work on their note books, such bits of conversation can be heard:

"Oh, Frances, may I borrow your liver a minute?"

"Sorry, honey, I'm using it now."

Someone searches for Vitamin A's.

"I haven't any brains, but here's a good cabbage head."

"Say, get your book off my skeletal system—oh, dear! I've left my heart at home and I promised to loan it to Carl."

LIBRARY

You don't know what real silence is until you've been in the library where a very audible sigh causes a student to be eyed critically by at least half the occupants of his table.

You'll remember the Mecca of bored students, the magazine shelf, which is crowded, at the beginning of each period with students who know that probably they should study, but fall before the real temptations of a new "Good Housekeeping", or "Life".

FEATURES

THE CLASS SLEEPER

The boy just ahead was out late last night;

With Morpheus in vain he has fought a good fight,

His head on his arms, slumped low in his chair,

In muss and confusion his once well-groomed hair.

Now ever so softly he commences to snore,

The teacher drones on with the hundred years' war,

Then a start, a sharp "Ouch!" and a muttered "aw tripe!"

His knee has encountered the hot-water pipe!

BEFORE ROLL CALL

"Who was that blond I saw you with, Roy?"

"Tearing me!"

Of course it's the group at the top of the stairway, where the newest expressions are heard, and the world's problems solved. In this genial group of boys, we recognize one of the friendly customs which have given this school its personality. When we visit Hickman High in later years, we hope we shall find the same sort of gay, friendly group leaning over the rail.

HUGGIN' THE RADIATOR

When you've been out the night before,
And you've round you friends galore,
Then you tell of good times o'er,

Huggin' the radiator

When things have somehow gone amiss
What boon could ever surpass this?
This is heaven, this is bliss—

Huggin' the radiator.

A BUSY ROOM IN HICKMAN HIGH

"When in doubt ask Mr. Strong in the manual training room" seems to be the unspoken slogan of Hickman High School. Whenever we are worried about anything from stage scenery to football equipment he is about the first person we seek, and nine times out of ten, our difficulties vanish like ice cream on a hot day when he and his crew get to work to solve them.

Just a glance around the room, especially during school hours, shows that there are no unemployment problems here, for everything expresses industry and efficiency. The room is filled with complicated-looking machinery which, it seems, can do almost anything if one pulls the right lever, and which buzzes and whirs so loudly that one could not stoop to idle conversation even if he wanted to.

Under Mr. Strong's instructions, the boys of the manual training department complete many pieces of work that are worthy of high praise, and they also give willingly of their service to help the school in general.

DEDICATION

We, the staff of 1933, dedicate this mess to the purpose of bringing back fond recollections to those of our student body who, after the ratification of the Umpteenth Amendment (prohibiting the telling of jokes more than 500 years old) find themselves in the Home for Old and Decayed Funsters.

EDITOR'S COMMENT

On behalf of the Mess-et staff, I wish to voice our appreciation to the powers that be for not enacting the above-mentioned amendment until after the publication of our jeer-book.

SENIOR CLASS HISTORY

Theme Song: "You May Be One Some Day, But I'M a Senior Now!" (Tune, "Marching Through Georgia.")

—O—

In the spring of 1930, Jeff Junior released a mob of emigrants who, during the three summer months, made the long trek to HHS. Upon the opening day a class of some 200 human beings and several musicians cluttered up the building boasting that they were the new Sophomores. All bravado was quickly dispelled, however, and the class promptly submerged themselves in the green-horn period. They bobbed up only once that year, at which time they introduced the Soph yell. The next year they appeared at the surface occasionally to peddle papers, and once to throw a banquet. At the beginning of this year, however, they emerged entirely, shook themselves, and went to work to do everything from "A" to "Z" (exclusive of "S" for "study"). This jeer-book is their most glowing achievement—they expect to find most of the copies glowing in a trash fire.

(Class photo's censored by Art Editor and staff.)

—O—

JUNIOR CLASS HISTORY

Theme Song: "What Are These Sprouting at My Shoulders?" (Tune, "I Love Me")

—O—

When the doors were opened in the fall of '30, a motley mob was found wandering through the HHS corridors. Inquiry proved that they had been graduated from Jefferson a year too soon. They were immediately rounded up and sent back, but a count showed that the two class midgets were missing. Later that week, when lockers were opened, the midgets were found in number 678. It is not known what they did for food, but they had kept in physical trim by doing acrobatics on the coat hooks. In the fall of '31, the class, properly graduated at last, swooped once more onto the scene. Flying their banners with the class colors (green, green, and green), and their insignia (a rubber neck rampant in a high school building), they stormed into the corridors. They were soon shown their proper place by the upper classmen and they became very reticent—so much so that they did not even attempt to continue the Soph yell. In fact, they were not heard from again until last fall, when a copy of the school paper containing the names of some of their members was found among the debris on the Mess-et desk. You will hear much from them next year.

(Class portraits accidentally (?) mislaid.)

H U M O R

SOPHOMORE CLASS HISTORY

Theme Song: "Some Day We'll use Sophs for Doormats!" (Tune, none—voices changing.)

This class entered last fall in orderly fashion. They at once fell to work to revive the class yell. This was accomplished, and the Sophs have vied with the Seniors all year in assembly yelling. Their one weakness seems to be in not being able to ascertain whether or not they are in assembly. The class has contributed several athletes, a few "sassiety leidies of lasure"—er, ah—"ladies of leisure", and even some scholars (if in doubt, consult the "honory" roll). It is reported that at their first class meeting of the year, they painstakingly elected officers, only to find that those chosen were some alumni who were visiting. Then it was decided not to have officers—most of the class being afraid of policemen anyway. The class is credited with several questionable achievements already. The presentation of 50 packages of paper towels to ye dear old alma mater the day after 51 of same had been reported as missing from the janitor's store room is one of several such activities brought to our watchful eye. May they soon live down this reputation.

(Class pictures are non-existent, as all of the cameras were broken before the photographers could get around to the Sophs.)

ATHLETICS

Because financial conditions did not permit, a Mess-et staff member could not be sent to cover inter-school sports, so our sport section is restricted to inter-class competition. Records of various events during the year were tabulated and the results are as follows:

Gum-chewing endurance	winner, Seniors.
Last-minute Home-Room sprint	winner, Sophs (small size and agility aided winners; Juniors awkward; the Seniors didn't care).
Wrestle with Locker combinations	contest a draw (everybody lost at least one round).
Long-distance yelling in halls	winner, Sophs.
Library-to-office march	[the main part of the participation in this event (with the Head Librarian as the official starter) took place among new students early in the year before the Mess-et staff was appointed.]

HAM WHAT-AM CLUB

(Alias Thalian Guild)

(Modesty forbids that we give all the names used for it)

This dis-organization was founded by Hugo Zillich, European ancestor of the well-known Elmer Zilch, prominent in the last presidential race. It is believed that this is one reason Elmer failed. When one of Zillich's followers appeared at this school several years back, he created a sensation. The first play presented was "Mud". A little too much was presented and the general public has never finished throwing it back. Anyone may join if they still want to after seeing the members. Up until this year this club was also known as the HHS student body, but the placing of activity period after school hours cut down the membership greatly. The annual routine of this mob is to get their picture taken, and collect several more batches of the long-lost mud. They even dished out some advice this year, which will probably be returned in a manner similar to the mud.

QUILL AND SCROLL

(Also known as Squeal and Scrawl, Reel and Fall)

The chief value of this union is to bring to light as many composers of cheesy verse, spooney stories, and moth-eaten humor as possible. In this way public violence or influence can be dealt accurately and further distribution of such illiterature prohibited. The members can be easily distinguished (but not so easily extinguished) by a medal fastened prominently on their apparel. Their efforts are given a regular airing through the channels of the school paper. (We suggest filing them permanently in the tall red baskets which are provided for the purpose.)

THE TORCH

(Likewise known as "Scorch" and "Stuck-Uppe")

The chief functions of this honor society are to initiate new members, pose for a photograph, and display with all possible prominence, the organization's emblem. For further misinformation don't ask a member—he'll tell you.

We regret that space does not permit the listing of other clubs, societies, and assassinations.

Miss Poe: "All of you hold up your books so I can see them. (After looking around) Is that Muzzey's book, Carson?"

Carson Benedict: "No, this is my book."

Miss Poe: "I know, but has it got Muzzey's name on it?"

Carson: "No, I just bought it at the Missouri Store."

Miss Poe: "Carson, will you please open your book and read the first page."

Carson: "History of the American People, by David Saville Muzzey."

Hickman High School is quite astonished at the remarkable ability of Elsbeth Wahlin in writing verse. Her masterpiece, a poem to her uncle, deserves attention:

John:

We've had a lot of swell times together these past 3 years. I'm glad that you are going to U. of M. and I hope we can be in band together. We are practically twins in some respects, if that isn't a insult. It has meant a lot to me to have you for a close friend. I wish you all the happiness and success in the world. You're the type of guy to whom it's "yours for the taking."
